Elder Morgan Preaches His Last Sermon.

To the largest crowd ever assembled within the portals of the Paris Christian church Elder Carey E. Morgan preached his last sermon before entering upon his duties as pastor of the Vine Street Christian church at Nashville, Tenn., Sunday evening.

The services Sunday morning were well attended, but in the evening the various churches gave way for the occasion of Elder Morgan's last sermon and as a result every religious denomination was represented.

The spacious auditorium and lecture room which were thrown into one were crowded to the utmost, all the available seating space being occupied, while the galleries were taxed to their capacity, many being forced to stand.

At conclusion of the morning service Professor M. G. Thomson, one of the elders of the church, in a few well chosen sentences voiced the deep regret of the congregation at parting from their beloved pastor, and gave the following summary of his nine years pastorate in Paris: He has received about nine hundred persons into the church, married three hundred and twenty-five couples. Preached four hundred and twenty-five funerals, ministered to the poor and needy, comforted the distressed. Placed four missionaries in the fields, and promoted Christian fellowship.

Professor Thomson then read the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted by a rising vote of the congregation:

"Whereas, our beloved pastor, Elder Carey E. Morgan, has accepted a call from the Vine street church at Nashville, Tenn., and has by his resignation severed his relations as pastor of the Christian church at Paris, Ky.

Be it resolved: First, that we express our appreciation of his excellent services as our pastor and teacher during the last nine years.

Second, that we testify as to our confidence in him as a Christian man, an elegant gentleman, an accomplished scholar, and a true citizen.

Third, that we regard him as a sympathetic friend, a safe counselor, frank and firm in his convictions of right and wrong.

Fourth, that we admire his genial, pleasant manner, which is always conducive to the highest pleasure in the family and social circle.

Fifth, that we deplore the loss of his example and influence, not only in our own church but in the entire community.

Sixth, that we feel that the church and Sunday school have lost a zealous worker, and a most efficient teacher in his estimable wife.

Seventh, that we commend him and his family to the Vine street church at Nashville, Tennessee, and send greetings. What has been our loss will be their gain. May God bless him and his family, and may happiness and great results attend his and their labor in his new field, is our earnest prayer.

Respectfully submitted,

"HOS. HEARLEY,

"C. ARNSPARGER,

"M. G. THOMSON,

"J. S. WILSON,

Dec. 31, 1911. Committee.
Elder Morgan took up the pastorate of the Paris church on June 1, 1903, and lacks only a few months of serving his congregation for nine years, during the time he endeared himself to the people of this community, regardless of religious faith, and won the admiration of his congregation beyond measure.

In addition to his local work Elder Morgan is a trustee of his Alma Mater, Butler College, Indiana. Curator of Transylvania University, member of board of Trustees of Kentucky Christian Missionary Society, member of the Acting Board of the America Christian Missionary Society, Life Director in Foreign Missionary Society, member of the Christian Unity Commission of the Disciples of Christ, member of the Advisory Committee of the National Society for Broader Education, and President for ten years of the Kentucky Christian Missionary Society.

The Paris church prospered to a wonderful degree under his pastorate, and he has been found at the front, working like a devoted Christian to comfort those in distress.

Elder Morgan will leave Thursday for Nashville to assume his new pastorate and while it is with regret that his congregation and the community give him up, it is to be felt that he has fulfilled his mission and seeks a new field to continue his work for Christ.

Local Market Steady.

Poultry and eggs on the local market are steady. The demand of the past week was not so great as that of the week preceding the holidays. Dressed hens are retailing at 16 2-3 cents, and turkeys at 20 cents per pound. Fresh eggs command 35 cents per dozen, and packed eggs being 30 cents. Country butter sells for 25 cents per pound.

Bourbon Dealer Sells Fine Horses.

Mr. Sanford Carpenter, the well known stock dealer of Millersburg, has made several good sales of horses in the past few days. He sold to George Easterbrook, of Denver, Col., at a good price Sanford Chieftian 4433, by King Chieftian. This horse belongs to both the saddle and harness class and was a winner at the Blue Grass Fair. Mr. Carpenter sold to Mr. W. C. Sharp, of Arkansas, the yearling stud, Robert E. Lee, 4345 by King Chieftian, for $1,000; to J. R. Mosier & Co., of Jefferson City, Tenn., he sold Tennessee Chieftian for $600. He also sold to Jones & Vaughn, of Newport, Tenn., Gladys Chieftian 709, by King Chieftian, for $400.

What Tariff Board Proves.

The Taft tariff board exonerates woolen manufacturers of anything like taking advantage of high tariff rates to advance prices. The board's report would make it appear that the woolen trust wouldn't do such a thing.

But the report isn't altogether useless, because it proves beyond successful contradiction:

First—That Schedule "K" is indefensible; it proves this conclusively and for all time.

Second—It confirms practically every charge made against the woolen schedule by Democrats and Progressive Republicans.

Third—It proves that the American people are victims of extortion from wool manufacturers.

Fourth—And that President Taft's veto of the Underwood-LaFollette bill was against the interests of 90,000,000 consumers of woollens; that it was absolutely unjustified, unnecessary, and therefore unforfeitable.

Tariff protects trusts only.

Louis D. Brandeis, the famous Boston lawyer, who looks, acts, walks and talks like Abraham Lincoln, while testifying before the Senate trust investigating committee, charged how the trusts received the greatest protection have destroyed trade's unionism, reduced wages, increased working hours, and driven Americans out and brought foreign immigrant labor into their mills.

He exposed the injustice and futility of the Tobacco trust settlement, effected by the United States Supreme Court, and said the rule laid down amounted to this "What man has illegally joined together, let no court put asunder."

In contrast with the record of the tariff protected trusts, Mr. Brandeis presented instances where prices have been reduced, and wages raised, in industries operated under free competition. Yet the standpatters would have the workingmen believe that the Payne-Aldrich high protection wall was put up exclusively for their benefit.

The Law's Rewards.

United States Circuit Court Judge Peter S. Giesse, of Chicago, has managed to make a millionaire out of himself while sitting upon the Federal bench. Besides getting rich himself he appointed Marshal E. Sampson, his court clerk, receiver for a traction company that was in litigation in his court at a salary of $25,000 a year.

John M. Harlan, one of the really great jurists in this nation's history, and one of the best friends the common people ever had on the Supreme bench, died a few weeks ago. His daughter recently has accepted a position as secretary to earn her living.

Number Decreasing.

The Germans and Irish in the United States are rapidly decreasing in number, while the Italians, Russians and natives of Austria-Hungary and Finland have more than doubled in number since 1900. This is a report made by the Census Bureau.

The bureau calls it a "matter of a very considerable interest and importance." In the census of 1900 there were reported 1,615,232 persons born in Ireland, and last year the number had decreased to 1,351,400. Ten years ago the United States had 2,813,413 persons born in Germany, and last year there were but 2,499,200.

The numbers of natives of Italy went up from 483,963 in 1900 to 1,341,800 in 1910; Austria-Hungary, from 636,968 to 1,658,700, and Russia and Finland, from 640,710 to 1,706,900.

Increases are shown in the number of arrivals from England, Canada, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Mexico.

Railroad Statistics.

The following railroad statistics were given out by the State Railroad Commissioner:

Total miles of road in Kentucky, 3,8310.

Built during past year, 179 miles. Gross receipts for 1910, $46,788,004; for this year, $49,065,187.

Increase in gross receipts, $2,287,183. Increase in net receipts, $1,119,356. During the year 49 employees were killed and 1,168 injured.

People killed during the year, including passengers and people on the tracks, 109.

Taft and the Woolen Schedule.

An important point in connection with the President's message on the woolen schedule has escaped attention. It is this: Mr. Taft is giving the people a discourse on wool instead of cheaper woollens. Whether the President's message, which doesn't tell Congress any more about the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad than it knew before will be accepted by the country as a satisfactory substitute for cheaper and better clothing, which he promised in his pre-election speeches, and was in a position to give but flatly refused by vetoing the Underwood-LaFollette wool bill, remains to be seen.

Here are some facts which will aid the reader to reach a conclusion as to whether the President is now, ever was or ever will be in good faith with the public when it comes to interfering with the profits of the tariff trusts which makes big campaign contributions to the Republican party: When the Payne-Aldrich bill was passed Mr. Taft said the woolen schedule of that measure was "indefensible," and that he would like to see it revised and revised downward. At the extra session of Congress Democrats and Progressive Republicans passed a bill reducing the abnormally high tax on woollens in a sincere and patriotic attempt to lighten the burden of taxation to the users of woollens. Had the president signed this bill it would have meant a reduction this winter in the price of woolen clothing of all sorts for men, women and children; also in the prices of blankets and other forms of woolen manufactures needed for warmth by the general public.

But the president vetoed this bill affording the very kind of relief he had declared to be in sympathy with, forcing the American people to continue to pay a subsidy in artificial prices to the wool industry of approximately $50,000,000 a year.

The joke is on the public again. The people asked for cheaper and better clothing, and all they get, as far as Mr. Taft is concerned, is a nicely worded but useless message; words as a substitute for relief from the extortionate prices exacted by the tariff trusts.

Will Gather the Coin.

The Republicans have elected the man who is to be in charge of the filling of the Republican campaign barrel for the 1912 contest. He is Fred W. Upham, who was assistant trust contribution grabber in 1908. Between presidential elections Mr. Upham trains with the Busse machine in Chicago, runs a coal monopoly during the winter and an ice trust during the summer, and also has a lumber company, a railroad, and a few banks and trust concerns. An ideal selection.

Thirty years of association, think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy, or sore lungs. Price 50c and $1. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Ends Winter's Troubles.

To many winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of burns, boils, piles, cuts, sores, bruises, eczema and sprains. 25c at Oberdorfer's.

Good Substitute for Sardines.

The fact that Maine herring, when quite young, are canned and marketed for sardines done up in olive oil, is fairly well known. As the home product is about as tasty and wholesome as the imported article, there is not much use of getting excited over the imposition.

Queer Town is Ironsport.

The most remarkable town in America, in some respects at least, is to be found among the hills of Southern Ohio. It is Ironsport, with 700 inhabitants, ten miles east of Zanesville. The Ironsport postoffice was closed on Tuesday, October 31, because Joseph Barney, the postmaster, said he had not sold a single stamp in five weeks, nor had he received any incoming or outgoing mails. The people explain that they have no friends to write to and they are all too busy anyhow.

There has not been an idle man in Ironsport since 1909, according to the Rosary. The monks are running full time and every minor owns his own home. Some time ago the police department disbanded, the chief declaring that there had been no arrests made within six months, and that it is only a waste of public money to keep salaried policemen. The village records one fire in two years, and the damage then was $200.

A recent census showed that the population was composed of 637 Irishmen, 11 Welshmen and 52 Germans. Until October, 1911, there were only eleven men and women in Ironsport who had "no church." A Zanesville priest recently reported that he had succeeded in converting these eleven persons.

The school teachers of Ironsport, four in number, declare that Ironsport children are unusually bright, owing to the moral influence of the towns. Not since a circus visited Ironsport, three years ago, has there been a person seen on the streets so late as midnight.

"What's the trouble with that prima donna?" asked the manager. "She used to be very pleasant and considerate." "Yes," replied the stage manager, "but she has gotten so she believes all the press agent writes about her."

Napoleon's Capricious Appetite.

Napoleon had a penchant for roast fowls, cutlets and smoking coffee. He ate at odd times, and only when he felt hungry, driving his cooks to distraction because when he called for food it had to be ready for him almost on the instant, or at least as soon as the table could be laid.

on the side of the house where winter blasts strike hardest always has a lower temperature than the rest of the house. There are times when it is necessary to raise the temperature quickly or to keep the temperature up for a long period. That can't be done by the regular method of heating without great trouble and overheating the rest of the house. The only reliable method of heating such a room alone by other means is to use a Toney Relates Experience in Chicago.

A writer in the Louisville Times has the following of Fred Toney, a former Blue Grass League star pitcher: "Fred Toney, Blue Grass League pitcher of unusual reputation, who is now with Charley Murphy's National League team, has been the subject of a number of stories since he has been with the Chicago team, the majority of which have been told with Toney in the role of the 'goat.' The big pitcher tells them on himself in a great many instances, and he is one of the most popular players in the Chance outfit the stories go all around the circuit."

While in Louisville last week Tom A. Sheets, president of the Lexington, Ky., team, added a new one on Toney to the list, and, as usual, it came originally from Toney. The two old friends were together in Cincinnati not long ago, and the former Winchester star was telling his Lexington friend of his experiences in Chicago.

Fred had concluded a recital of instances in the Windy City to show how men on the Chicago team had helped to get him along, and particularly now the older pitchers had taken an interest in him to teach him all the tricks of his profession. He had just finished some high praise on Mordecai Brown.

"But Chicago is a peculiar place," said Toney. "It's the hardest place in the country to get acquainted with. Why, I lived within two or three squares of the ball park where I was on duty when in Chicago, and there never has been a time all this year that I could find the park by myself without a lot of difficulty, and I hardly know what part of the city it is in yet. Chicago is a queer place."

Handsome Gift.

Sunday afternoon at the meeting of Bourbon Division No. 486, O. R. C., Secretary J. M. Smelser was presented with a handsome emblem ring. Easy Method of Making Salt.

The process of making salt at the springs in Salinas, Mexico, is very simple. The water, which contains 4 to 7 per cent. salt, is pumped into tanks; it is then evaporated to 25 to 28 per cent., beginning to crystallize at 18 per cent. The water is then drained off and the salt swept out.

Paris Banks in Fine Condition.

The statements of the Paris banks at the close of the year 1911, show a healthy and prosperous condition of these institutions. The total deposits of the five Paris banks exceeds $1,600,000. The Agricultural Bank declared its usual semi-annual dividend of five per cent and carried $3,000 to surplus and individual profits and shows deposits of $226,000.

The Deposit Bank declared its usual dividend of four per cent and carried the remainder of its profits to tax account and individual profits. Its individual deposits amount to $371,756.43, which is the largest individual deposits ever shown by this flourishing institution.

The Bank of George Alexander & Company paid a semi-annual dividend of eight per cent and carried $1,000 to surplus and showed individual deposits of $275,000.

The Bourbon Bank had about the best six months' business in the history of that institution, its earnings amounting to $3,500, in addition to its semi-annual dividend of four per cent and its individual deposits amount to $375,989.02, which is the largest ever shown by this bank, and is an income of $107,740.51 on its deposits on December 31, 1910, their loans amounting to $485,631.28.

The First National Bank showed a gross earning for the six months of $12,413.81. They did not declare a dividend but carried the sum of $10,000 to surplus. Their deposits show $478,442.64, and their loans $431,729.30.

Will Begin Labors Today.

The Bourbon County Board of Tax Supervisors, appointed a few days ago by Judge Denis Dundon and composed of B. M. Renick, Geo. Rassenfoss, Ed Rice, J. T. Estes, E. P. Claybrook, S. S. Ardery and W. G. Talbott, yesterday received their commissions and will begin tomorrow going over the books of Assessor McClintock.

Railroads to Issue "Penny Scrip."

All railroads South of the Ohio and East of the Mississippi Valley will inaugurate a novel departure in railroad ticket selling on January 7 next. For the first time in railroad history in this country the roads in this territory will issue what is known as "Penny Scrip" Books.

These books will each contain 2,500 coupons of the value of a cent a coupon and will be sold for $20 a book. The books will be handled in the same manner as mileage books are now. The owner will present the book to the ticket agent and have detached enough coupons to make the regular tariff rate.

The issuing of these "penny scrip" books was suggested by the Louisville & Nashville railroad and had been in consideration in that office for over three years. There is much complaint about mileage books but by the new "penny scrip" each passenger can check his own mileage at all times. All he has to do is to find the regular tariff rate and figure the fare for himself.

This "penny scrip" book will be the first $20 book ever sold by the Louisville & Nashville. This new scrip will reduce the fare to slightly over 2 cents a mile. The average fare now is about 3 cents a mile. By buying 2,500 coupons for $20 the passenger saves 20 per cent on his fare. With a "penny scrip" book, therefore, the passenger will pay about 2-5 cents a mile.

Notice to Consumers.

January 1, 1912.
We will discontinue all interior wiring and gas fitting and repair work and confine our business strictly to the supplying of Gas and Electric Current.

There are a number of good firms in town doing gas fitting and electric wiring whom we recommend to our consumers.

In order, however, to accommodate our consumers, and insure them getting the best results, we will continue to handle the best grades of Gas and Electric Lamps and have reduced the price to actual cost and will sell only for SPOT CASH at the company's office. We will keep no book of accounts.

As to leakage or repairs, the pipes, wires and fixtures are the property of the consumer, with which we have nothing to do, but can be attended to by firms in that line of business.

All complaints will be given immediate attention and promptly cared for up to and including the meter, and where necessary the service will be cut off until the trouble is remedied.

Immediate notice must be given. With all our efforts directly given to the furnishing of Gas and Current we hope to give Paris the very best service and merit your commendation.

Final Adjustment Sale!

The Last Stage of Our Re-organization! Final Payment Must Be Made to the Retiring Members of the Firm January 15th, and We Therefore Inaugurate This Sale to Raise Necessary Cash Immediately,

So as to be in entire readiness to cope with the great crowds that will be attracted by this very important event, our store was closed on Monday, January 1, to make the necessary re-arrangement of stock and other preparations.

Last June we announced to the public a re-organization of this store brought about by the retirement of Mr. Henry Kaufman and Mr. Benjamin Straus from this firm, Mr. Simon Wolf, Mr. Dolph Wile and Mrs. M. Blumenthal having bought out their interests. Ever since then we have made rapid progress in the work of re-organizing and adjusting the affairs of the firm, until now we come to the point where the actual transfer of interests takes place and final settlement is to be made with Messrs. Kaufman and Straus, January 15th. This means that we must raise within the very short space of 11 days, many thousands of dollars CASH. Or, in other words, we must sell thousands of dollars worth of merchandise every day between now and January 15th. We fully realize that this is a colossal undertaking, requiring the most powerful and drastic resources at our command. The surest, quickest and most powerful way of accomplishing our purpose is to forget prices for the time being and cut prices so phenomenally throughout our stock that the people of Lexington and vicinity will be glad to take the merchandise off our hands and thereby enable us to raise the required sum. Hence, Thousands of Dollars Worth of Fresh, New, Fashionable and Seasonable Merchandise at the Most Extraordinary Reductions in Years! The Greatest Bargains We Have Ever Offered. The savings on high-grade wanted merchandise you can make in this sale are simply phenomenal. They are almost unbelievable, in fact. But we are prepared to convince the most skeptical of the genuineness of our offers. We Have Gone the Limit in Price Reducing! Join the Crowds! Come and Save Money!

Negro Shoots Another Over Dime.

In a difficulty during a crap game and resulting from a dispute over a dime, James Gaines shot Arthur Johnson Sunday night at Millersburg, and as a result of which Johnson is in a critical condition at his home at that place.

The trouble occurred Sunday night about 9:30 o'clock, during a crap game which was in progress at the home of Will Washington, colored, and which was participated in by a number of negroes.

The dispute arose when Johnson is said to have picked up a dime on the table which Gaines claimed belonged to him. After a few words passed between the men, Gaines is alleged to have drawn his revolver and fired at Johnson.

The bullet from the 44 calibre revolver took effect in his left breast, passing close to the heart and through the body. Johnson's physicians are of the opinion that he will not recover, although yesterday morning his condition was somewhat improved.

Immediately after the shooting Gaines made his escape by a rear window and up to this time has not been apprehended. The police of this city have received a description and notice to be on the lookout for the negro, but it is believed he went in the opposite direction.

Mule Market Looks Good.

Although there has been a very noticeable decrease in the market value of mules within the last year, owing to the high price of feed which has prevailed, and to the decline in the South on the values of cotton mules, yet the market in Bourbon county has been very active, and two very important sales by local dealers have been made within the past few days, forty-nine head of mare mules being disposed of at an average price of $200 per head. Twenty-four of this number were sold by Clarke & McClintock, of Paris, to Asa Jewell, of Lexington, at an average price of $200 per head, and twenty-five head more sold by Caywood & Thomsen, of North Middletown, to G. W. Jordan, of Hawesville, Ga., at $200 each. These animals are from four to six years old and sixteen hands high. It is very probable that in February, or as soon as the spring season opens, mules will be in demand and should bring good prices.

Racing Body Holds Meeting.

At a meeting Tuesday afternoon in Lexington of the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Racing Association, James P. Ross was re-elected superintendent of the track and grounds, and Secretary Garrett D. Wilson was delegated to go to Louisville to attend a meeting with Matt J. Winn of the Louisville Jockey Club, and John Hackmeister, of the Latonia Jockey Club to discuss dates for the race meetings next spring. Lexington would like to have about the same as last year, embracing the first week of May.

Fine Showing.

We wish to call your attention to the statement of the Deposit Bank of this city on page 4 in this issue. They show the largest deposits and loans that the institution has ever shown. The deposits show an increase of over $130,000 since December one year ago, and the stock value has increased more than $40 per share since January one year ago, as shown by recent sales, thereby making the stockholders more than $40,000.

A Healthy Institution.

We direct attention to the statement of the condition of the First National Bank which appears in this issue of the News on page 4. It not only has a large increase in the deposits but the earnings for the past six months are $12,413.81 which is a fine showing. The increase in the surplus of $10,000 making a total of $70,000. Read the statement over, compare it with other banks and be convinced that Paris has one of the best institutions of the kind in the State of Kentucky.

Break Up Dance But Suffer Penalty.

An incident, resulting in a near-riot, occurred Friday night during a dance at the Elks Hall which was being given by the young men of the county. Two young men of this city made their appearance on the floor of the hall with two women of ill-repute the sight of which engaged the male participants in the dance. One of the boys was badly used up, when several sprang upon him, and were administering a severe beating when several others intervened and put a stop to further hostilities. The other boy, with the two women, made his escape as soon as it became apparent that his companion was in for a warm time. The performance had the effect of breaking up the dance and in police court Saturday morning the male offenders were given a fine of $27.50 each.

MATRIMONIAL.

Wednesday afternoon Miss Nora L. English and Mr. C. W. McGinnis were married at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the officiating minister Rev. J. K. Spencer, in Lexington. Several relatives and friends were present.

The bride wore a suit of white cloth and her bouquet was of white roses. She is an unusually pretty girl and held the position of stenographer for the firm of R. Arnsperger in Lexington.

Mr. McGinnis is a popular conductor on the Paris Interurban line and a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McGinnis, of this city.

The good wishes of many friends predict for the couple a life of happiness and prosperity.

—A marriage license was issued Saturday to Mr. A. J. King and Mrs. Meady Mastin.

—Miss Edna Earl Green, daughter of the late Mr. Robert Green, and a sister of Mr. Blanton Green, of Paris, and Mr. Samuel James Dorchester, a St. Louis, Mo., banker, were quietly married at Maysville on Christmas day.

The bride, who has been living at St. Louis, was making a visit to her sister, Mrs. Hamlet Sharp, in Maysville, and by prearrangement the bride groom came on from St. Louis, to claim his bride, the wedding taking place at the Sharp residence at two o'clock in the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends. Rev. R. L. Benn, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church in Maysville, performing the ceremony. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dorchester left for St. Louis.

DEATH.

—Little Alexander Duke Woodford, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. James Woodford, died Friday morning at eight o'clock. The burial was held Saturday morning at ten o'clock in the Paris cemetery. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved young parents.

—Mr. Bedford Deaver, aged thirty-five years, died Sunday morning at ten o'clock, at his home on the Jacktown pike.

He had been in ill health for about three years, suffering with rheumatism lung and heart trouble, but the direct cause of his death was uraemic poison.

Mr. Deaver is survived by his wife, who was Miss Campbell, of Carlisle, and three children, the oldest of whom is seven years of age, and the youngest three. Two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Stone and Mrs. Fannie Langston, and one brother, Mr. Lee Deaver, also survive.

The burial will take place this morning at 11 o'clock, the procession leaving the residence at ten o'clock. Services at the grave by Elder Carey E. Morgan.

—Mr. John D. Bruer, aged 76 years, died at his home on Fourth street in this city Saturday night of general debility. He has been in ill health for some time and his death has been momentarily expected for several days.

Mr. Bruer was born near Maysville, Ky., October 27, 1835, and was married March 8, 1865 to Miss Mary J. Gault, of Cincinnati.

For many years he was book keeper for A. Finch & Company, of Maysville, and was well known to all the older citizens throughout that section of Kentucky as a man of the highest integrity.

Mr. Bruer came to Paris January 1, 1895, accepting the position of book-keeper for the Power Grocery Company which position he held for fifteen years, or until declining health compelled him to retire from active work. He was known to the merchants in this section as "Judge" Bruer.

He united with the Methodist church early in life, and lived a consistent Christian life. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Louise Bruer.

The funeral services were held at the residence yesterday morning at 11 o'clock conducted by Rev. J. S. Simms, of the Methodist church, assisted by Rev. J. L. Clarke, of Winchester. The remains were taken to Maysville on the 12:05 p. m. train to Maysville for burial.

Gave Up Hope

"I suffered five years, with awful pains, due to womanly troubles," writes Mrs. M. D. McPherson, from Chad-bourn, N. C. "They grew worse, till I would often faint. I could not walk at all, and I had an awful hurting in my side; also a headache and a backache.

I gave up and thought I would die, but my husband urged me to try Cardui, so, I began, and the first bottle helped me. By the time the third bottle was used, I could do all my work. All the people around here said I would die, but Cardui relieved me."

SOME HINTS ON SWEEPING

Broom in the Hands of the Inexperienced Often Does More Harm Than Good.

It is not an easy matter to sweep well, at any rate, if one judges by experience, for when a broom is put into the hands of the inexperienced more harm than good generally results from the use of it.

Light sweeping and soft brooms are desirable. Many a carpet is prematurely worn out by careless sweeping. In sweeping thick piled carpets always brush the way of the pile. By doing so it may be kept clean for years; but if the broom is used in a different way the dust will enter the carpet and soon destroy it.

If the carpet covers the whole floor of the room and it is nailed down, place the chairs and other articles of furniture which can be easily moved in the middle of the room, pin up the curtains and cover the couch with an old sheet.

Pieces of damp paper may be sprinkled round the sides of the room, and then sweep with a carpet broom toward one place.

Take short strokes, being careful not to raise the broom much. Sweep the corners and edges with a small whiskbroom.

Put two tablespoonfuls of ammonia into one gallon of water; wring a cloth out of this and wipe the carpet. This will remove the dust and help to brighten the carpet.

PLAIN WASHING SODA'S USES

Chemical is Great Saver of Work and Almost Indispensable to the Housekeeper.

Uses for common washing soda: One heaping tablespoonful of soda to a pint of water (boiling) will clean the ugliest burned pan by letting it soak a few hours.

In boiling clothes a few tablespoonfuls of soda in the water will eradicate stains from clothes and lend a snowy whiteness. I have used it on the finest quality of white goods with entire satisfaction. It will not injure the material.

To clean a coffee or tea pot made of granite or lined with porcelain, fill up the utensil with cold water, set on stove to boil, and add a lump of soda as large as a hazelnut to the water. It cleanses perfectly. In fact, sweetness is insured after its usage in every instance.

To clean silver: Put a level tablespoonful in dishpan, add a quart of cold water, put on fire to boil (put silver in pan in the cold water), and wipe immediately after the water boils up. Result: Perfectly shined silver ware without any trouble. These are hints I learned for myself on the usages of soda.

Lemon Jelly.

An excellent rule for lemon jelly, which is nice either as a dessert by itself or as a foundation for an elaborate sweet, calls for two cupfuls of boiling water, two small lemons, half a big cupful of sugar and two large tablespoonfuls of gelatine, or as much as will stiffen the mixture when it becomes cold. Soak the gelatine in barely enough cold water to cover it, and when it becomes soft melt it completely by setting the cup it is in in boiling hot water. Then stir it immediately into the lemon juice, water and sugar, which should be heating on the stove. Let the jelly harden on ice or snow after pouring it into a mold.

Mince Meat.

Four pounds of beef, one pound suet, half pound citron, one pound raisins, one pound currants, half pint sugar, half pint vinegar, half pint of New Orleans molasses; one small glass of brandy, a glass either of currant or loganberry jelly, one nutmeg, one tablespoon cloves, cinnamon and allspice. Boil the beef, pepper and salt to taste. Cut off all the fat and gristle. Add one and three-quarters more of apples than meat. Chop apples fine. If not sweet enough add more sugar. Boil two hours on back of stove. This will keep several weeks. Seal as you would fruit.

Honey Candy.

Put half a pound of honey into a saucepan, add half a pound of sugar, one tablespoonful of cream and a dessertspoonful of cold water, then mix and stir well. Allow to stand for one hour. Put over a moderate fire, stirring gently until it is stiff enough to pull. Pour into buttered tins. When cool enough to handle pull and cut into small pieces.

Queen Charlotte Pudding.

One pint of bread crumbs, one quart of milk, one cup of sugar, yolks of four eggs, butter size of a walnut. Bake half an hour. Take out of the oven and cover with currant jelly. Beat whites of the four eggs, one cup of sugar, juice of one lemon, spread over the jelly and brown in the oven.

Lemon Meringue Pie.

Grated rind and juice of large lemon, one cup sugar, two egg yolks, one tablespoon cornstarch, butter size of walnut. Add enough cold water to fill pie tin. Cook until thickened. Bake crust first, put in filling, spread over top beaten whites of eggs, with one tablespoon of sugar. Brown in oven.

Hastens Egg Beating.

Some housekeepers believe that eggs will beat more quickly if a pinch of salt is added to them.

FREE REMEDY HELPS CHILDREN

Many a mother has learned of a way of avoiding sickness in her family, especially among the children, by the use of a free sample bottle of the famous laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This offer of the doctor's to send a free sample bottle has been responded to by thousands of women in all parts of America.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a truly wonderful laxative and especially adapted to the needs of babies and children because it is pleasant to taste and no child will refuse it. Then, it is mild and never gripes. It is all that a child's remedy should be, though it is a good laxative for the whole family because it is effective at all ages. It is not dynamic like salts, pills, and powerful cathartics, which should not be given to children under any circumstances.

Nine times out of ten when a child complains and you don't know exactly what is the matter with it, it needs a laxative—its bowels are constipated. Syrup Pepsin will correct the trouble, tone up the child and soon it will be well again—wonderful results have been secured with Syrup Pepsin over night.

You can buy it of any druggist at fifty cents or a dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size, but you are invited to make a test of it first at the doctor's expense. Send him your address today and he will send you a free sample bottle direct to your home. Then when satisfied buy it of your favorite druggist.

For the free sample address him, Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The POOL of FLAME

CHAPTER I.

A still and sultry dusk had fallen, closing an oppressive, wearing day: one of those days whose sole function seems to reside in rendering us irritable conscious of our too-close casings of too-solid flesh; whose humid and inert atmosphere, sodden with tepid moisture, clings palpably to the body, causing men to feel as if they crawled, half-suffocated, at the bottom of a sea of rarefied water.

The hour may have been eight; it may have been not quite that, but it was almost dark. The windows were oblong, black as night in the yellow walls of O'Rourke's bedroom in the Hotel d'Orléans, Monte Carlo.

I have the honor to make known to you the O'Rourke of Castle O'Rourke in the county of Galway, Ireland; otherwise and more widely known as Colonel Terence O'Rourke; a chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France; sometime an officer in the Foreign Legion in Algeria; a wanderer, spendthrift, free-lance, cosmopolitan—a gentleman-adventurer, he's been termed.

He was dressing for dinner. The glare of half a dozen electric bulbs discovered him all but ready for public appearance—not, however, quite ready. In his shirt sleeves he faced a cheval-glass, pluckily (if with the haggard eye of exasperation) endeavoring to outmaneuver a demon of inanimate perversity which had entered into his dress tie, inciting it to refuse to assume, for all his coaxing and his stratagems, that effect of nonchalant perfection so much sought after, so seldom achieved.

Patently was the thing possessed by a devil; O'Rourke made no manner of doubt of that. Though for minutes at a time he fumbled, fidgeted, fumed, it was without avail.

His room itself was in a state of "considerable disorder"—something due mainly to O'Rourke's characteristic efforts to find just what he might happen to desire at any given time without troubling to think where it ought properly to be.

Something of this confusion, mirrored in the glass, was likewise reflected in O'Rourke's eyes, what time he paused for breath and profanity. "Faith, 'tis worse than a daw's nest, the place," he admitted, scandalized. "How ever did I—alone lone man—do all that, will ye be telling me?" He flung out two helpless baffled hands, and let them fall. After a meditative pause he added: "Damn that Alsatian!"—with reference to his latest and least competent valet, who had but recently been discharged with a flea in his ear and a month's unearned wage in his pocket. "For knowing me ways," sighed O'Rourke, "there was never anyone like of Danny."

For as many as three livelong days this man had been reduced to the necessity of dressing himself with his own fair hands—and that at least thrice daily, who did nothing by halves. And, somehow, mysteriously, his discarded garments had for the most part remained where he had thrown them, despite the earnest efforts of the femme de chambre to restore something resembling order from this man-made chaos. For servants all liked well the O'Rourke, improvident soul that he was, freehanded to a fault.

You are invited to picture to yourself O'Rourke as invariably he was in one of his not infrequent but ever transient phases of affluence: that is, a very magnificent figure indeed. Standing a bit over six feet, deep of chest and lean of flank, with his long, straight legs he looked what he had been meant to be, a man of arms and action. His head was shapely, its dark hair curling the least in the world; and, incredibly stained, a transparent brown, his features were lean, eager, and rendered very attractive by quick boyish eyes in whose warm blue-gray depths humor twinkled more often than not, though those same eyes were not seldom thoughtful, a trace wistful, perhaps, with the look of one who recalls dear memories, old friends and sweethearts loved and lost. . . . For he had begun to live early in life and had much to look back upon, though for all that it's doubtful if he were more than thirty at the time he became involved in the fortunes of the Pool of Flame.

For the rest of him, barring the refractory tie, the man was strikingly well groomed, while his surroundings spoke for comfortable circumstances. On the authority of the absent and regretted Danny, who had long served the O'Rourke in the intimate capacities of body-servant, confidant and chancellor of the exchequer (this last, of course, whenever there happened to be any exchequer to require a chancellor), there was never anyone at all who could spend money or wear clothes like himself, meaning the master. And at this time O'Rourke was ostensibly in funds and consequently (as the saying runs) cutting a wide swath. Heaven and himself only knew the limits of his resources; but his manner a Monte Cristo might have aped to advantage. His play was a wonder of the Casino; for the matter of that, his high-handed and extravagant ways had made the entire Principality of Monaco conscious of his presence in the land. And you fall in the least to understand the nature of the man if you think for a moment that it irked him to be admired, pointed out, courted, pursued. He was, indeed, never so splendid as when aware that he occupied the public eye. In short, he was just an Irishman.

So, then, it's nothing wonderful that he should seem a thought fanciful about the set of his tie.

Now as he stood scowling at his image, and wishing from the bottom of his heart he had never been fool enough to let Danny leave him, and calling fervent blessings down upon the head of the fiend who first designed modern evening-dress for men—he found himself suddenly with a mind divested of any care whatever and attentive alone to a sound which came to him faintly, borne upon the heavy wings of the sluggish evening air.

It was nothing more nor less than a woman singing softly to herself (humming would probably be the more accurate term), and it was merely the tune that caught his fancy; a bit of an old song he himself had once been wont to sing, upon a time when he had been a happier man. It seemed strange to hear it there, stranger still that the woman's voice, indistinct as it was, should have such a familiar ring in his memory. He frowned in wonder and shook his head. "The age of miracles is past," he muttered; "would never be herself. I've had me chance—and forfeited it. 'Twill not come to me a second time. . . ."

The singing ceased. Of a sudden O'Rourke swore with needless heat, and, plucking away the offending tie, cast it savagely from him. "The divil fly away with ye!" he said. "Is it bent on driving me mad ye are? I'd give me fortune to have Danny back! . . . Me fortune—faith!" He laughed the word to bitter scorn. "Tis meself that never had the least of anything like that without 'twas feminine—with a 'mis' tacked onto the front of it!" And he strode away to the window to cool off.

It was like him to forget his exasperation in the twinkling of an eye; another mood entirely swayed him by the time he found himself gazing out into the vague, yelvy dusk that momentarily was closing down upon the fairy-like panorama of terraced gardens and sullen, silken sea. His thoughts had winged back to that dear woman of whom that fragment of melody had put him in mind; and he was sighing and heavy of heart with longing for the sight of her and the touch of her hand.

Even as he watched, stark night fell, black as a pocket beneath a portentous pall of cloud. . . . Far out upon the swelling bosom of the Mediterranean a cluster of dim lights betrayed a stealthy coasting steamer, making westward. Nearer, in the harbor, a fleet of pleasure craft, riding at anchor on the still, dark tide, was revealed in many faint, wraith-like shapes of gray, all studded with yellow stars. Ashore, endless festoons of colored lamps draped the gloom of the terraces; the facade of the Casino stood out lurid against the darkness; the hotels shone with reflected brilliance, the palace of the Prince de Monaco loomed high upon the peninsula, its elevations picked out with lines of soft fire.

The O'Rourke shook his head, condemning it all. "Tis beautiful," he said; "faith, yes! 'tis all of that. But I'm thinking 'tis too beautiful to be good for one—like some women I've known in me time. 'Tis not good for Terence—that's sure; 'tis the O'Rourke that's going stale and soft with all this easy living. . . . Me that has more than many another to live for and hope for and strive for! . . . And I'm lingering here in the very lap of luxury stuffing myself with rare food, befuddling meself with rarer wines—me that has fought a day and a night and a half a day atoo of that on nothing and a glass of muddy water!—risking me money as if there was no end to it, throwing it away in scandalous tips like any drunken sailor! And all for the scant satisfaction of behaving like a fool of an Irishman. . . . 'Tis sickening—dismal; naught less. . . . I'm thinking this night ends it, though; come the morning I'll be pulling up stakes and striking out for a healthier, simpler place, where there's something afoot a man can take an interest in without losing his self-respect. . . . I'll do just that, I will!"

This he meant, firmly, and was glad of it, with a heart immeasurably lightened by the strength of his good resolution. He began to hum the old tune that the unknown woman's voice had set buzzing in his brain, and broke off to snap his fingers defiantly at the Casino. "That for ye!" he flouted it—"sitting there with your painted smile and your cold eyes, like the brazen hussy ye are—Goddess of Chance, indeed!—thinking ye have but to bide your time for all men to come and render up their souls to ye! Here's once ye lose, madam; after this night I'm done with ye; not a sou of mine will ever again cross your table. I'll have ye to understand the O'Rourke's a reformed character from the morning on!"

He laughed softly, in high feather with his conceit; and, thinking cheerfully of the days of movement and change that were to follow, the song in his heart shaped itself in words upon his lips.

"I'm Paddy Whack
From Ballyhack,
Not long ago turned soldier—O
At grand attack,
Or storm or sack,
None than I will prove bolder—O!"

His voice was by way of being a tenor of tolerable quality and volume, but untrained—nothing wonderful. It was just the way he trotted out the rollicking stanza that rendered it infectious, irresistible. For as he paused the voice of the woman that had reminded him of the song capped the verse neatly.

"An' whin we get the route
Wid a shout,
How they shout!
Wid a ready right-about
Goes the bould soldier-boy!"

O'Rourke caught his breath, startled, stunned. "It can't be—," he whispered. For if at first her voice, subdued in distance, had stirred his memory with a touch as vague and thrilling as the caress of a woman's hand in darkness, now that he heard the full strength of that soprano, bell-clear and spirited, he was sure he knew the singer. He told himself that there could be no two women in the world with voices just like that; not another than her he knew could have rendered the words with so true a spirit, so rare a brogue—tinged as that had been with the faintest, quaintest exotic infection imaginable.

But she had stopped with the verse half sung. His pulses quickening, O'Rourke leaned forth from the window and carried it on:

"O, 'tis thin the ladies fair
In despair
Tear their hair!
But—'Tis divil a bit I care!
Cries the bould soldier-boy!"

There fell a pause. He listened with his heart in his mouth, but heard nothing. And it seemed impossible to surmise whence, from which one of all the rooms with windows opening upon that side of the hotel, had come the voice of the woman. She might as well have been above as below him, or on either side; he could not guess. But he was determined.

Now there was beneath his window a balcony with a floor of wood and a rail of iron-filigree—a long balcony, extending from one corner of the hotel to the other. At intervals it was splashed with light from the windows of chambers still occupied by guests belated or busy, like himself, with the task of dressing for the evening. The window to his left was alight; that on his right, dark. With half his body on the balcony, his legs dangling within the room, O'Rourke watched the opening on his left with jealous, breathless expectancy. Not a sound came therefrom. He hesitated.

"If that weren't her room, I'd hear somebody moving about," he reasoned. "Tis frightened she is—not suspect in 'tis me. . . . But how do I know 'tis herself? . . . Faith! could me ears deceive me?"

With that he took heart of hope and broke manfully into the chorus, singing directly to the lighted window, singing the first line with ardor and fervor, with confidence and with hope, singing persuasively, pleadingly, anxiously, insistently.

"For the world is all befo-ore us—" he sang and then paused. He heard no echo. And again he essayed, with that in his tone to melt a heart of ice:

"For the world is all befo-ore us—"
And now he triumphed and was lifted out of himself with sheer delight; for from the adjoining room came the next line:

"And landladies ado-ore us—"
Unable to contain himself, he chimed in, and in duet they sang it out to the rousing finale:

"They ne'er rayfuse to sco-ore us,
But chink us up wid joy
We taste her tap, we wear her cap—
O, that's the chap
For me," cries she—
"Whitroo!"
Isn't he the bairnt, the bould soldier-boy!"

As the last note rang out and died the next window was darkened; the woman had switched off the light.

He heard a faint rustle of silken ruffles. "Tis herself," he declared in an agony of anticipation—"herself and none other! And I'm thinking she'll be coming to the window now—"

He was right. Abruptly he discovered her by the reflected glow from the illumination behind him. He was conscious of the pallid oval of her face, of a sleek white sheen of arms and shoulders, of a dark mass of hair, but more than all else of the glamour of eyes that shone into his softly, like limpid pools of darkness touched by dim starlight.

Inflamed, he leaned toward her. "Whist, darling!" he stammered. "Whist! 'Tis myself—'tis Terence—"

But she was gone. A low, stifled laugh was all his answer—that and the silken whisper of her skirts as she scurried from the window. He flushed crimson, waited an instant, then flung discretion to the winds, and found himself scrambling out upon the balcony. Heaven only knows to what lengths the man would have gone had not the slam of a door brought him up standing; she had left her room!

So she thought to escape him so easily! He swore between his teeth with excitement and tumbled back whence he had come. Regardless of the fact that he was still in his shirt-sleeves he rushed madly for the door. On the way a shooting-jacket on the door, perhaps in revenge for neglect and ill-treatment, maliciously wound itself around his feet and all but threw him headlong; only a frantic clutch at the footrail of the bed saved him. Kicking the thing savagely off he flung himself upon the door and threw it open. His jaw dropped.

The lift shaft was directly opposite. Before it, in more or less patient waiting, stood a very young and beautiful woman in a gown whose extreme candor was surpassed only by the perfection of its design and appointment—both blatant of the Rue de la Paix; a type as common to the cognoscenti of Monte Carlo as the Swiss hotel porters. But O'Rourke did not know her from Eve.

"The divvie!" said he beneath his breath.

He was mistaken; but the young woman, at first startled by his unceremonious appearance, on instantaneous second thought decided to permit him to discover that twin lumps, at least, resided in her eyes. And when his disappointment prevented him from recognizing them, her dawning smile was swiftly erased and her ascending eyebrows spoke eloquently enough of her haughty displeasure. Synchronously the lift hesitated at that landing and the gate clanged wide; the young woman wound her skirt about her and showed him a back which at any other time would have evoked his unstinted admiration. Then the gate shot to with a rattle and bang, and the lift dropped out of sight, leaving the man with mouth agape and eyes as wide.

A beaming but elderly femme de chambre on duty in the corridor, remarking O'Rourke's pause of stupefied chagrin, hoped and believed he needed her services. She bore down upon him accordingly.

"M'sieu is desirous of—?"
He came out of his trance. "Nothing," he told her with acid brevity. "But, yes," he reconsidered with haste. "That lady who but this moment took the lift—her name?"

"Her name, m'sieu? M'am'selle Voltaire."

"Impossible!" he told himself aloud, utterly unable to forge any connecting link between the lady in the lift and her whose voice had bewitched him.

"But assuredly, m'sieu! Do I not know—I who have waited upon her hand and foot these three days and to whom she has not given as much as—that." The woman ticked a finger-nail against her strong white teeth. "M'am'selle Victorine Voltaire," she asserted stubbornly.

O'Rourke fumbled in his pocket and found a golden ten-franc piece, surrendering it to the woman as heedlessly as though it had been as many centimes. "I'll be leaving me room in five minutes, now. And do ye, for the love of Heaven, me dear, try to set me things the least trifle to rights. Will ye now, like the best little girl in the world?"

The best little girl in the world, who was forty-five if a day, promised miracles—with a bob of a courtesy. But so disgruntled was O'Rourke that he shut his door in her face.

"Tis meself that's the fool," he said savagely enough, "to think for a moment that ever again I'll set me eyes on her pretty face—God bless it, wherever she may be! . . . For 'hy should I deserve to—I, the peniless adventurer?"

Germs Spread in Skin

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema. A 25c bottle will prove this to you.

We have had experience with many remedies for skin trouble but have never seen such remarkable cures as those from D. D. D. Prescription. Instant relief from the very first application.

We are so confident that D. D. D. will reach your case that it will cost you nothing if the very first full size bottle fails to make good every claim.

If you have skin trouble of any kind, we certainly advise you to drop in and investigate the merits of D. D. D. anyway. We know that D. D. D. will help you.

G. S. Varden & Son.

Busy Embroiderers.
As early as 1773 over 6,000 women were engaged in stitching the fine embroideries which made St. Gall famous even in those early days. The number had increased by the beginning of 1800 to 30,000, the industry having extended to Baden, Wurtemberg, Bavaria, western Austria and all the country about Lake Constance.

Slow Progress.
A friend met a youthful and lazy author on the street.

"How is your novel getting along?" he asked.

"Oh, I've begun it," answered the author proudly. The two did not meet again for several weeks. At the next encounter, the friend again asked:

"Well, how's your novel?"

The author paused a moment.

"Let me see," he said, "where did I tell you I was in it when I saw you the last time?"

"You said you'd begun it," answered the friend.

"Well—I've still begun it," confessed the author, guiltily.

Platinum.

Referring to platinum, books say that "this metal has never yet been successfully deposited as a protecting coating to other metals" and add "the metal to be plated must be coppered."

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Pickard of North Carolina. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases; stops the itch instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.

Trial bottle 25 cents, enough to prove the merit of this wonderful remedy. We can also give you a full size bottle for $1.00 on our absolute guarantee that if this very first bottle fails to give you relief it will cost you nothing.

To Whom Does This $1,000 Belong?

A case on the docket of the Clark Circuit Court is unique in that there is one thousand dollars in a bank for which no owner can be found. It is an echo of the famous Marcum damage suit, in which Mrs. Abraile Marcum sued Senator and Judge Hargis, Ed Callahan and Fult French for $100,000 damages for the murder of her husband, J. B. Marcum. It was the largest single damage suit ever filed in the State.

The day after the trial began several of the most important witnesses for the plaintiff left the State, in charge of Mose Feltner, as alleged, and remained in Ohio and Indiana until after the close of the trial. It is said the defendants promised Mose Feltner $1,000 to take the witnesses beyond the jurisdiction of the courts. Each side was afraid to trust the other, and the money is said to have been placed in the hands of Felix Feltner, of Leslie county, a mutual friend and a cousin of Mose Feltner.

Felix Feltner subsequently swore that a young man whom he did not know came to his hotel and placed the money in his hands and left, without saying what it was for. He placed the money in bank and swore he did not know to whom it belonged. Some years later Mose Feltner brought suit for the money, but Judge Benton threw the case out of court, saying the whole transaction was corrupt, fraudulent and against public policy, and that the court would not be a party to its enforcement.

Felix Feltner left Kentucky and is in the West, and Fult French has brought suit against him for the money on the ground that Feltner owes him. For their part in the spiriting away of these witnesses Fult French and Felix Feltner were given the heaviest punishment ever inflicted in Kentucky for contempt of court. French was fined $5,000 and Feltner was fined $3,000 and sentenced to two years in jail. Feltner paid his fine and the jail sentence was remitted by Acting Gov. Cox. Gov. Willson remitted the State's portion of French's fine and he paid the rest. Meanwhile the thousand dollars remains in bank with the ownership undecided.

Feeding Dairy Cows.

This is the time when the dairyman with a silo is not worrying about what to feed or because feed is high. The present prices of hay, corn and mill feed or causing many dairymen to resolve not to pass another winter without a silo.

The use of silage means the keeping of more cows on the same acres. It cuts the hay bill in half and produces larger yields of milk. In feeding, silage and hay are generally fed as much as the cattle will consume.

Provide, if possible, alfalfa, cowpea or clover hay. In case of a shortage of these, use whatever is obtainable but whatever is lacking in the hay will have to be supplied in the more expensive grain feeds.

Many dairymen are having good success with corn silage, cottonseed meal and cowpea hay, using no mill feed, and where some grain seems to be needed, supplying it with silage and cowpea and clover hay. Feed grain in proportion of one pound of grain to 10 or 15 pounds of milk produced. Without silage and with timothy or corn fodder, for roughness, feed 1 pound of grain mixture to about 3 pounds of milk.

Bran and shipstow are really too high to be considered and ready-mixed patent feeds are still higher. Many have learned from experience that "ready-made" feeds do not pay. Corn, cottonseed meal and sometimes a little bran or oil meal are used to mix with mill dust and weed seeds for filler. Some are honestly made but all "ready-made" feeds are made at a profit of five to ten dollars per ton, which can be saved by mixing at home and even better results obtained. Nothing can be said in favor of condimental feeds or conditioners.

Many mixed feeds, selling from $20 to $35 per ton have from ten to twenty per cent protein. When cottonseed meal, containing 35 to 41 per cent protein, can be obtained for less than $20 per ton. Dried distiller's grains containing about 24 per cent digestible protein cost about $30 or less, being a very much cheaper source of protein than bran.

Many successful dairymen are making up their own rations such as corn chop or corn and cob meal, four hundred pounds, and cottonseed meal one hundred pounds, and dry distiller's grains one hundred, and fifty pounds, makes a good ration. The mixture being fed in proportion to milk yield, as previously described. Good clover or alfalfa hay, chopped fine and mixed with the corn chop and cottonseed meal, will make the feed light and bulky, as is desired for cows. Since two thousand two hundred pounds of alfalfa hay is equal to a ton of bran, there is little need of expensive concentrates with alfalfa.

The wiser dairyman who makes the most money will grow silage and corn and hay rich in protein and buy protein only in the shape of cottonseed meal, oil meal and gluten feed.

A common fault in feeding is the use of too much grain and feeding all cows alike, regardless of production.

Different kinds or combinations of feeds do not affect the butterfat content of milk.

Questions regarding dairy cow feeding will be gladly answered. Mention the prices of feed you have or can secure.
